ASK THE ADVISOR

I'm looking for recommendations for a North American ski holiday.

"Telluride has some of the highest and most diverse ski terrain in the world, as well as superb apres-ski venues in an authentic mining town setting. It's considered a well-kept secret by Tinseltown, as Telluride offers the class and sophistication of Aspen without the scene. Telluride folks are as down-to-earth as the West itself. The added bonus? With 18 lifts including 7 high-speed quads, there are practically no lines. But the unique asset of Telluride is that, unlike at most resorts, both beginner and intermediate trails are at the top of the mountain, including Prospect Bowl – beautiful glade skiing with endless undulating green and easy blue runs with lots of variety for the entire family."
